Fair Regulations

General rules for merchandise

At the O M G Militaria Fair it is only permitted to offer militaria that does not conflict with Dutch law. For example, traders may offer for sale: army vehicles, vehicle parts, military (repro) clothing, equipment, utensils, helmets, badges, medals, tools and other aids for the restoration of army vehicles, vintage (repro) civilian clothing from the period 1940-1945. , historical books and DVDs and other WWII related items. All irrelevant antiques and grandmother's items are not allowed.

Warning: It is strictly prohibited to offer weapons or replicas, weapon parts, blank weapons and ammunition for sale at the Militaria Fair of O M G. In accordance with Dutch law, it is prohibited to exhibit, sell or exchange any object that could give rise to racial politics or xenophobia, including all Nazi memorabilia.

Registration as a trader

We expect 10.000 visitors throughout the week

Up to one (6) weeks before the start of the fair on September 14, 2024, which is before or on August 3, 2023, it is possible to reserve one or more locations via the OMG website.

Participation in the Militaria Fair is only final after receipt of the registration form and after receipt of payment of the invoice.

The Fair committee allocates the locations of traders according to availability and will take the wishes of a trader into account as much as possible when allocating.

The Fair committee has the right, without stating reasons, not to allocate or to partially allocate the location reserved by a trader.

Please note: any sales activity outside the O M G Militaria Fair on the O M G event grounds is prohibited

All traders are obliged to take out civil liability insurance for participation in trade fairs (trunk sellers only need third-party liability insurance for private individuals; companies must have liability insurance for companies).

Admission tickets

As a merchant, you will receive two wristbands for the first location, one for you and one for your employee. You will receive an additional wristband for each subsequent location, with a maximum of five wristbands. Other employees are seen as visitors and must purchase an entrance ticket. The use of the toilets and shower is free.
